Okke Surjana is PDS Group's latest Business Partner

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

PDS Group LTD takes great pleasure in announcing our latest Business Partner, Okke Surjana.

Having attained successful results in the areas of engineering design, research, information system, people resource management, performance process development and improvement, Okke Surjana has helped organizations, teams and professionals thrive in the midst of challenges presented by changes in technology. He has led and coached organizations to identify opportunities to develop and implement new processes resulting in dramatic improvement to their productivity and effectiveness.

Since the 1990's when he was manager of an information system group, Okke recognized that aligning expectations is the key to success. Following this principle has allowed him to help improve morale in organizations. He has coached people who would have lost their jobs to empower themselves to change direction, retool and succeed in their careers.

Okke holds a BA in electrical engineering from Rutgers University. He has multiple years of management and leadership experience in telecommunications along with experience as a network analyst, technical support, software programmer and engineer.

About PDS

PDS Group professionals specialize in strategic alignment to ensure the goals of any productivity improvement are realized. How? By making change objective and personal using a methodology we call AIEx™ - Aligning Expectations.

AIEx™ has helped clients add millions in sales, bring construction projects in on time and to budget, and successfully transition family-owned businesses. This process can be used from small leadership teams up to organization-wide alignment projects.
